

The practice of Wu/Undoing/Diminishing

5. Shape

We observe shapes as that what distinguishes one thing/being/us from the others. But this learned observation also creates thoughts and feelings of discrimination, of being different (better?). Beyond shape there is connection: we are related with and connected with everything and everybody. In Taoist practice we stress oneness, uniting, and limitlessness.